1 Leadership: as I see it

2 Who I was: Growing up

3 Stepping into leadership

4 My first failure & intervention

5 Lead for the right reasons

People can tell when you are fake or selfish.

6 Be a leader. Don't try to lead

- Leading up and down the chain of command (Extreme Ownership, chapter 10)
- Leadership is omnidirectional
- "I don't hire smart people to tell them what to do. I hire smart people to tell me what to do."- Steve Jobs
- You will understand situations better than your boss sometimes. Lead them to a solution. Educate them.
 - Works only with a good "boss"
 - or great skill on your part
- Easier is to allow yourself to be led. Do that.

7 Becoming an associate dean/associate VP

8 How and why I walked away

9 Know who you are. Be in the right place before you lead

- You cannot lead when you do not believe in the leaders above you.
- You don't need to agree with every decision, but you need to believe in their intent.
- If you cannot quit your leadership role, you are not a leader, you are a manager.

10 Good (Jocko Willink)

11 Returning to Leadership

12 Put the welfare of your team first

- If you can't put your team first, it's time to walk away.
 - This happens regularly. Retirement is a perfect example.
- Add to your team wisely
 - An empty position is better than a wrongly filled position
 - Interview for strengths and character. Tolerate gaps.

13 Your job isn't to be liked- but it helps

- Be kind, not nice (The Next Conversation)
- Your team matters more than one individual (The Hard Thing about Hard Things)
- Empathy matters
 - If you don't feel bad when you fire someone, you are a sociopath
 - If you don't follow through and fire individuals when necessary, you hurt everybody else.

14 Going through the strike

15 Coming to Tech

16 Planning

- Know your team's tolerance & style. The past matters
 - Burned out
 - * Create it yourself with one-on-one informal conversations
 - Excited
 - * Create tiger teams
 - Ambivalent
- No plan survives contact with the real world (Field Marshal Helmuth von Moltke the Elder)

17 Culture is everything

- If you build the right culture, you don't manage at all (The Culture Code)

18 Prioritize and Execute (Extreme Ownership)

- Know what you are doing and why.
- Be cautious of endeavors you have no experience in.
- Stop, look around, make a call. Decisions are hard. Being a leader means making hard decisions regularly.

19 Simple (Extreme Ownership- chapter 6)

20 Check your ego (Designing the AIEB) (Extreme Ownership, chapter 4)

- You never have to bring the solution to the table.
- BUT, you have to find the solution with your team.
- Built right, your team will carry you.
- Never take credit when you can give it away. You will get credit for your team.

21 Other lessons

22 Only apologize if you are authentic (The Next Conversation)

- Instead, thank the other person for their accommodation.
- Apologize when you've caused harm. Then, fix it. Be sincere. Some things cannot be fixed. You will have to live with them.
- Your guilt is the price you pay for your growth.

23 Take ownership

- This does not mean to do everything
 - It means that when you are assigned a task, you ensure that it does get done, by you or someone else.
- Everything your team must accomplish, you own.

24 Every failure means:

- You assigned the wrong person
- You did not train them well enough
- You didn't clarify the assignment
- You didn't provide the resources
- You didn't provide the time

25 Learn non-verbal queues.

- Play poker (tiny stakes)
 - (Caro's Book of Tells)
 - (What the Body Says)
 - (What Every Body is Saying)

26 Learn to Negotiate

- To do that, you need to understand them.
 - (Never Split The Difference)
 - (Tactical Empathy)

27 Understand your mission as a leader

- What are you supposed to do?
- This can change swiftly

28 Understand your organization's health

- What is its state?
 - Growing?
 - Sustaining?
 - Failing?
- How you lead changes.
 - Big vision- sell the destination
 - This is natural, we need to adapt and change, the earlier the better
 - This is war- join me

29 Provide backup (variation on Extreme Ownership- chapter 5)

- Never assign a project without
 - A backup person
 - A schedule that allows time to bring in one or the other
 - Assessment of progress in time to do so
- For clubs, always assign a senior member and a junior member to the task.
 - If it goes poorly, you have a backup, and a massive growth opportunity (be ready to help the junior member)

30 Distributed leadership

- Ensure everyone understands the mission and the parameters

31 Pitfalls

- (Blindspot)
- (How the Mighty Fall: And Why Some Companies Never Give In)

32 Sustaining yourself

- Exercise
- Nutrition
- Rest
- Friends are critical
 - My friends are hidden from my colleagues

33 Sustaining yourself (cont)

- (13 Things Mentally Strong People Do)

- (What you do is Who You Are)
- Be humble- you will only slightly move the needle of humankind
- Be willing to move on
 - Great missions last generations
- The greatest leaders are filled with self-doubt
- There are those around you who are amazed and inspired by you. They seldom tell you. You are admired.
